If you give a dictator a cookie, he'll want to invade your cookie jar.

And if he invades your cookie jar he's likely to break into a million little pieces even though he promises he's only after cookies.

Once he's broken your cookie jar and eaten all your cookies, he'll want milk.

If you refuse to give him milk because he already broke your cookie jar and eaten all your cookies, he'll threaten to break everything in your house and invade your refrigerator.

If he invades your refrigerator he'll find your stepbrother's Muscle Milk and drink it. Then he'll take off his shirt and flex his muscles and insist you call him daddy.

If you call him daddy, he'll think your house belongs to him and move in.

If he moves in he'll invite all his weird friends to move into the neighborhood.

If all of his weird friends move into the neighborhood, all your friends will move out.

If all your friends move out, they'll have to live with people in other neighborhoods and you'll probably never see them again.

That's why you never give a dictator a cookie.

Fucking brilliant. Such a great, simple insight. Don't give a dictator an inch (or a cookie). This would be a fantastic social media meme.
